About the Job

There is a need to fill 12 Office of Naval Research Science Advisor (SAs) positions. SAs serve a 1 or 2 year tour, extendable to 3, and remain on the roles of their home activity. SAs serve on the staff of a major joint, Navy, or Marine Corps command; assist and advise the host Commander and staff in the identification of Warfighting Capability Gaps that have a critical impact on combat readiness; and serve as the primary interface between the command and the RDT&E community in finding & implementing solutions. As a Science Advisor, you must have a specific understanding of the current DoN S&T planning and experimentation process to focus on transition of technology. SA positions listed here require a TS/SCI clearance by July 09 and ability to go into the field. Top candidates have experience with senior-level briefings and negotiations concerning prioritization of technological requirements. Up to 50% of time may be spent traveling. Current needs include:

- *Chief of Naval Operations for Communication Networks (CNO N6), Washington, DC.
- *Chief of Naval Operations, Director, Assessment Division-N81/N00X (OPNAV N81), Arlington, VA.
- *Chief of Naval Operations Executive Panel (CNO CEP), Arlington, VA.
- *Marine Corps Forces Pacific (MARFORPAC), Camp Smith, HI.
- *III Marine Expeditionary Force (III MEF), Okinawa, Japan.
- *Naval Forces Central Command (NAVCENT), Bahrain.
- *Naval Mine and Anti-submarine Warfare Command (NMAWC), San Diego, CA.
- **Naval Network Warfare Command (NETWARCOM), Norfolk, VA.
- *Navy Warfare Development Command (NWDC), Norfolk, VA.
- */**Seventh Fleet (SEVENTHFLT), Yokosuka, Japan.
- *Submarine Force (SUBFOR), Norfolk, VA.
- **Third Fleet (THIRDFLT), San Diego, CA.
